Things to review

- Line 27: split sum £302.67 differs from converted amount £302.61 for 'Marathon day dinner'.
- Balances before transfers don't sum to zero: -0.17
- Balances after transfers don't sum to zero: -0.17

The only meaningful mismatch I found is the marathon dinner line: the nine shares sum to £302.67 while the converted total says £302.61, so there's a 6p discrepancy. That's rounding-level nonsense, not a conspiracy.

Quick take

- Nelson fronted by far the most cash because of Airbnb, dinner and tourist tax, but most of that Airbnb was already repaid.
- After the transfers currently recorded, the three people who should receive money are Anjana (£378.46), Edu (£375.84) and Nelson (£197.19).
- The remaining debt side is spread across Alessia, Menta, Rhuari, Elza, Rachel and Vlad.
- There are two unlabelled expenses totalling £382.59. Worth naming them if you want the sheet to be less mysterious and less cursed.
